CHILDREN AT COMMUNION.

Class of Two Hundred Boys and Girls at St. Patrick's.

St. Patrick's Church was the scene of an impressive service at an early hour yesterday, when more than 200 boys and girls of the parish received their first holy communion amid ceremonies of unusual devotion.

Rev. Dr. Russell, who celebrated the mass, gave a brief discourse that will long be remembered by those present, for the tenderness, solicitude, and love it conveyed to the little ones in his charge, and because of the touching tribute paid by the speaker to the memory of the late pastor, Dr. Staffo.

Father McGuigan led the little ones into the sanctuary, to the foot of the altar, and holy communion was administered to them by Dr. Russell.

James William Carroll and Father James A. Smyth sang "Veni, Jesu, Adoramus Te" in duet, at the offertory of the mass, and several solos were sung by Father Carroll and Smyth while the children were receiving holy communion. "Sweet Saviour, Bless Us Ere We Go" was sung by the children at the close of the mass.

HOLDS SERVICE FOR MOTHERS

Beautiful Tribute Paid Them at First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Dr. MacLeod Delivers a Sermon of Praise and Members of Congregation Wear White Carnations.

An innovation in religious services, and one which represents a beautiful sentiment, was introduced at the First Presbyterian Church yesterday morning.

It was called "Mothers' Day," and every feature of the service was in some way devoted to mothers. The service was the result of a request made upon the church pastor, Rev. Dr. Donald C. MacLeod, about two weeks ago by the evangelistic committee of the general assembly.

Dr. MacLeod announced Sunday a week ago from the pulpit that yesterday would be set aside as "Mothers' Day," and, in closing, asked that every member of the congregation "remember the mothers in some way that would be a worthy expression of loyalty and love. He also requested that all who attended the mothers' service wear a white carnation in honor of the mothers."

The edifice was crowded when the service opened. The younger members of the church had taken care to see that no mother should be overlooked, and for those who, through feebleness or illness, were unable to reach the church carriages were provided.

The members of the young men's and young women's classes took care of the "carnation part" of the request, and they provided for every one who entered the church with white carnations.

Dr. MacLeod devoted his sermon exclusively to mothers, and paid them a high tribute. "Next to the sacrifice and love of God is the mother love and sacrifice, and our obligations to our mothers come next to our obligations to our God," he said.

He spoke of the hours and years of care and loving tenderness which they have given, and closed with a eulogy on mothers, and a plea for honor, reverence, and love for them. His words were earnest and eloquent, and made a deep impression on his hearers.

A special musical programme was arranged, and the selections, which were sung by the choir, were in accordance with the "Mothers' Day" idea.

So successful was the service that at its close it was decided to make "Mothers' Day" an annual affair in the church calendar in the future.

MANY GREET DR. GOODELL.

Parishioners Protest Action Taken at Baltimore Conference.

New York, May 24.—The general board of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, at Seventh avenue and 126th street, through a committee, to-day passed resolutions protesting against the "Un-Christian methods employed in the general conference at Baltimore" in regard to the pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Goodell, who lost what many believe to have been a sure election to the episcopate through the repeating of stories of his divorce from his wife, and of his being named as co-respondent in the Foster divorce suit in Providence, R. I., in 1886.

Dr. Goodell made no reference to the trouble in his sermons to-day. The evening service was of a memorial character, and was attended by an immense crowd. In the morning, too, the church was filled, there being about 1,200 persons present. In the congregation was a large delegation from the Hanson Place M. E. Church of Brooklyn, where Dr. Goodell was pastor for seven years before taking the pastorate of the Calvary Church four years ago.

After the morning services the people pressed forward to shake hands with Dr. Goodell; the crowd quickly formed in line, and at least 1,000 of those present grasped his hand.

The minister's sermon was taken from the text II Hebrews, x:10: "For He looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

Given Testimonial Concert.
Signor Luigi Teti was given a testimonial concert by the Washington Orchestra at Carroll Institute Hall, Tenth, near K street northwest, last night. Solos were given by Prof. Emile E. Mori, basso; Miss Bertha Mori, contralto; Charlton Howarth, tenor; Francesco Nicoletti, harpist; and Mrs. William Keyes Miller, soprano.

CROWN WITH ROSES

Catholic Children Honor the Virgin Mary.

ANNUAL MAY PROCESSIONS

Thousands Take Part in Pretty Ceremony of Decking the Shrine with Flowers in Churches Throughout the City—Sanctuaries Are Turned Into Bowers by Floral Offerings.

May roses were laid at Mary's shrine, her statue crowned in many churches, and hymns sung in her honor yesterday by several thousand children of the Catholic Church, who took part in the annual May procession in St. Aloysius', St. Patrick's, St. Matthew's, St. Mary's, the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, St. Augustine's, St. Theresa's, Anacostia, St. Anthony's, Brookland, and in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Georgetown.

Following the custom, long since established, the children of Trinity Parish walked through the heights of Georgetown, by the Convention of the Visitation and Georgetown College grounds, before entering the church, where the crowning of the statue of the Virgin was followed by solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Miss Geline McDonald, of Holy Cross Academy, was Queen of May in the procession at St. Matthew's Church, and read the act of consecration at the conclusion of the procession.

Miss Elery crowned the statue of the Virgin in the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, St. Anthony's Church, Brookland. The procession at St. Anthony's Church, Brookland, was exceptionally beautiful. Miss Lillian Clarke acted as queen and crown-bearer. Rev. Father Southgate addressed the children.

Several hundred children took part in the May procession at St. Mary's German Church, where solemn vespers were followed by solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament.

The line of procession by the children of St. Theresa's Church, Anacostia, included six squares through the streets of Anacostia. Miss Addie Waltheim was Queen of May.

The procession at St. Augustine's Church was an impressive sight, as more than 200 children marched about the church singing May hymns, and the sanctuary was a bower of blossoms after the children had placed their floral offerings at the feet of the statue of the "Blessed Lady."

At St. Patrick's Church, that earlier in the day had been the scene of a devotional service, was taxed to its capacity, and many stood during the May exercises, held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. More than 500 children took part in the procession, which, forming in Carroll Hall, proceeded west on G street to Tenth, to the church.

Notable in the religious march, because of their attire and the modesty and reverence of their bearing, were the boys and girls who had received holy communion at the early morning mass.

Many handsome banners were carried in the line. Miss Margery Corcoran was Queen of May, and her maids of honor were as follows: Miss Anna Smallwood, Miss Mary Johansen, Miss Rickie Johansen, Miss Lillian Miller, Miss Clara May Riechenbach, Miss Laura Hancock, Miss Dora Simpson, Miss Catherine Hannan, Miss Margery Burham, Miss Pauline Iman, Miss May Jacques, Miss Clara Johnson, Miss Edith Brown, Miss Annie Connors, Miss Marie Osborn, Miss Anna Lepley, Miss Lillian Milovick, Miss Johanna Gietzen, Miss Fonsa Fladung, Miss Cecilia Beckley, little Helen Quinn, Eleanor Wilkins, Master Stephen Fagan was the crown-bearer. Each child in the procession carried carnation blossoms, and placed them at the feet of the Virgin's statue.

These floral offerings remained at the shrine over night, and will be placed to-day on Dr. Stafford's grave. Father McGuigan addressed the children, and the impressive ceremony closed with solemn benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, bestowed by Dr. Russell. Father McGuigan acted as deacon, and Father Smyth as subdeacon, while Father James O'Connor, of the Catholic University, officiated as deacon of exposition.

Scene at St. Aloysius'.
The scene presented at St. Aloysius' Church, where 1,100 children marched through the church singing hymns of praise, was one of such splendor and devotion as has never been surpassed upon any similar occasion in this city. After marching for several squares around the church, the little ones entered the edifice singing "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother, We Give Thee Our Love." With plaintive sweetness the prayerful strains resounded through the spacious edifice.

Altar boys, numbering more than 100, stood within the sanctuary awaiting the approach of the procession, their robes of bright red with surplises of white lace creating a brilliant effect, while the tints and colorings of the costumes worn by the children in the procession enhanced the beauty of the scene.

One hundred boys in white suits, with blue ribbon badges; 100 in white, with red ribbons on their arms; then came the first communion boys, clothed in dark suits, with the conventional white ribbon badge on the arm, following which came the boys in blue, and last, the long-stemmed lilies that they carried.

Represented the Angelic Choir.
Girls, in like manner—little babes of scarce three years, in fleecy white creations, who formed the cherub choir, and tall girls with tinselled wings, representing the angelic choir—walked through the aisles, four abreast, chanting hymns of praise.

Each child placed her floral offering before the shrine erected within the sanctuary. Miss McAllister, the Queen of May, was attended by maids of honor and followed by tiny train bearers.

The sermon, preached by Rev. Father C. N. Riley, S. J., of Georgetown University, was followed by solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament. Rev. Father Keen, S. J., deacon, and Mr. Francis A. Byrne, S. J., subdeacon.

Lecture by Prof. Monaghan.
Before an enthusiastic audience which filled Gonzaga Hall last night Prof. James A. Monaghan, of the University of Notre Dame, delivered an instructive lecture on "Our Country—Its destiny." The lecture was a testimonial to Prof. Monaghan, who was formerly of this city. His forceful manner of address, his apt use of usually dry statistics, and the originality of many of his ideas were sufficient to hold the close attention of his hearers.

TURNERS' MEMORIAL DAY.

Members Will Decorate Graves of Their Soldier Dead.

The men's section of the Columbia Turnverein has decided to participate in the memorial day exercises this year, and place wreaths on the graves of those of their former members who participated in the civil war. The local turnverein was one of the first organizations in the country to offer their services in the civil war, and at Lincoln's inauguration the local Turners formed part of an escort of honor which accompanied him to the Capitol, where he took the oath.

Great preparations are under way for an "Athletic Field Day" to be held in July under the auspices of the Columbia Turnverein. The programme for the event has not yet been completed, but the Verein promises to arrange athletic and calisthenic contests in almost every department of physical exertion and exercise.

The turnverein entertained its members and friends at the gymnasium last night with a programme consisting of an exhibition drill by the children's class, music and songs, and sleight-of-hand tricks.

The German Central Union has made arrangements for a genuine old-fashioned German celebration of Pfingstmontag, or Whitsuntide Monday, on Monday, June 8, at Loeffler's Biadensberg Road Park. All sorts of amusements and games for young and old will be provided for, and the various singing societies will add to the programme by rendering chorus songs.

HONOR DEPARTED COMRADES

Memorial Services Held by the Union Veterans' Legion.

Crape-covered Chairs Representing Eleven Dead Members Are Crowned with Laurel.

Memorial services in memory of the comrades of Encampments Nos. 69 and 111, of the Union Veterans' Legion, who have died during the past year were held last night in Waugh M. E. Church, Third and A streets northeast. Sounding of the "assembly" by the bugler called the meeting to order, following which Chaplain Couden, of the House of Representatives, offered prayer.

Col. H. W. Sanford, of No. 69, explained the objects of the assembly and called upon the adjutants of each encampment to read the roll of honor, the names of his deceased comrades. In No. 69 were:

Thomas Thornburgh, died June 10, 1907.
Daniel E. Barrett, died August 4, 1907.
William T. Gause, died August 4, 1907.
John Wason, died August 4, 1907.
William P. Knight, died November 25, 1907.
Edmund Cotterell, died December 3, 1907.
Felix McJannet, died January 15, 1908.
Charles L. Patten, died March 17, 1908.
Charles Danenhower, died April 25, 1908.

The adjutant of No. 111 read the names of:

Herbert H. Ray, died June 25, 1907.
Samuel Myer, died March 31, 1908.

The lieutenant colonels of the two camps then placed wreaths of laurel upon each of the crape-covered chairs on the platform, which represented the departed comrades. Another chair, in honor of the loyal women of the war, was crowned by Mrs. Alberta Mell, of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Past Col. J. H. Hartley and Rev. George E. Mayfield, of Waugh Church, made the addresses of the evening. A touching tribute in honor of deceased comrades was paid by Col. Hartley, who said that the occasion was not one for grief, but rather for rejoicing with the men who had had the call to the great army above. Dr. Maxwell spoke in a similar vein of the happiness which those of the honor roll had achieved under the great Commander of Commanders.

When the audience had risen and sung "America," Chaplain William H. Womersley pronounced the benediction. The solemn notes of "taps" brought the services to a close.

CHILDREN HEARD IN CONCERT.

New Saengerbund Musical Feature Proves Pleasing Success.

An innovation has been introduced by the Washington Saengerbund in its annual programme of concerts and entertainments by adding a children's concert, at which the children of the members and friends of the bund may show their musical talent.

The first concert of that sort took place in the concert hall of the bund last night in the presence of the parents of the youthful performers, members, friends, and invited guests. The concert proved an unqualified success, and the entertainment committee has decided to make the children's concert a regular feature.

The children carried out their programme to the entire satisfaction of the audience, and their work showed conscientious study and careful preparation and brought them unstinted applause. The following programme was presented:

Piano solo, "Overture" and "Past and Present" (F. von Suppe), Master Maurice Kolner.
Violin solo, air and variations "Tante Doodle" (G. Wiedt), Master Arthur Jerome Schuster.
Piano solo, "Lobengrin" (L. Wagner), Miss Nella Waldecker.
Soprano solo, "I only just wanted to know, you know" (J. P. Sibelius), Miss Annie Neuland.
Piano solo, "Spinning Song" (Elmenreich), Miss Zella Jager.
Violin solo, "Carolina" (J. Raff), Master Paul Schwarz.
Piano solo, "The Song of the Alps" (T. P. Ryder), Master Carlan Rudy.

HOME AND SCHOOL COMBINE.

Parent and Teacher Organizations Formed for Mutual Benefit.

Through the efforts of Mrs. James McGill, three associations in the interest of home and school have been organized at the Central, Western, and Eastern High schools. The associations will be known as the Parents-Teachers' Association. Judging by the enthusiasm shown at the initial meetings, the clubs will rank among the first of their kind in the District in a short time. They were organized under the direction of the Mothers' Congress of the District of Columbia, and an effort will be made to establish similar organizations in other high schools of Washington. The following officers have been elected:

Central High School—Mrs. Dean, president; Mrs. Thirkield, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Farr, and Miss Harvey, vice presidents; Miss White, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Kate Selpe, recording secretary and treasurer.

Western High School—Mr. Baker, president; Mrs. Hill, Jesse H. Wilson, F. W. Collins, and Miss Ripley, vice presidents; Mrs. F. W. Collins, recording secretary and treasurer, and Miss Westcott, corresponding secretary.
